

The visitors to our city, or strangers in transit, if they have the time and stop, marvel at the beauty of Dunaföldvár. The inhabitants of the quiet little town with clean air, situated in the middle of the country, keep their values and cherish their traditions. There can be found here monuments, spas, charming cellars of hospitality, romantic nature reserves, Danube water surfaces capable of fishing and water sports. Dunaföldvár is starting to show its real face only now and developing attractive opportunities for tourism. One can taste the famous delicious fish soup on the bank of the flowing Danube at the foot of the town, and have a pleasant rest on the terraces of the busy centre area. The historic downtown become embellished by the renovation of the Castle Quarter and the streets to get there. It is worth going up and enjoying the stunning bird's eye view from the look-out tower known "Turkish tower". The recognition and associated developments of such touristic values as the nice location of the town and the geographical features can be decisive elements Dunaföldvár's future.

Within the scope of the project, the Municipality of Dunaföldvár town authentically restores the farmhouse of deteriorated condition; renovates, extends and converts the outbuilding into activity hall at No. 19 Attila Street, which have strong relation to the traditional, local rural life style of the 19th century. The building complex and the surroundings are under the protection of the local historic monuments. The forecourt, the rear garden and the court which are devastated and completely neglected are also restored in a traditional way (planting herbs and fruit trees) by common, voluntary effort of the locals. The project activities also involves restoration and cleaning of the furnishing of the house. By the implementation of the project the whole complex will be converted into an enjoyable traditional country farmstead with green environment and an exhibition area for local ethnography and history.

This farmhouse is the last and the only memory of the local vernacular built heritage. It was donated to Dunaföldvár town by Mari Jakli 's heir Margit Csizmadia in order to operate as a memorial country house with all facilities.
